

Minnesota International Tennis Academy

About - Our Vision, Mission and Execution

MIT Academy is dedicated to providing personalized, performance focused tennis training and athletic development, along with a extensive and highly monitored flexibility, strength and fitness conditioning program, and family oriented housing, so that invited players from around the world will acquire the athletic, technical and competitive skills along with valuable life skills to successfully pursue tennis as a sport in college and or tennis careers as professional players and professional coaches along the way, as well as becoming outstanding citizens in their future lives.

Focus, organization, commitment, high intensity, and the pursuit of excellence are the foundations for the Minnesota. Academy. This hands-on approach is characteristic of the TCTC reputation for providing supportive and nurturing coaches. MIT's Junior Team Tennis Advanced Competitive Teams also allow coaches to be present at our player's matches to coach players and help with strategy and mental fortitude during matches, often a feature not offered at many high level competition programs.

Our Academy has an incredibly committed and highly qualified staff made of up Academy Director Daniel Nabedrick and assistant coaching professionals from around the world, along with Physio Strength and Mental Coach Lori Fhima dedicated to your families' interest in tennis excellence, while promoting a healthy, fun, athletic, and safe experience for our players. Daniel Nabedrick, and our academy coaching staff, is committed to transforming the "summer tennis academy" experience in Minnesota, by providing an highly technical, strategic, athletic and mental training environment that keeps everyone playing hard, smiling, and making lifelong lasting relationships
